

135 Bell-Irving SQUADRON

There are squadron awards presented to deserving cadets at the end of the training year. A significant part of the criteria to obtain these awards is having a high level of attendance/ participation. Other criteria includes having completed all mandatory training requirements. There is a nominal roll taken at every event and it is the cadet's responsibility to ensure they sign it. The following is a list of mandatory training requirements:

- Participation in mandatory regular training
- Participating in parades and complementary training activities such as:
 - Battle Of Britain
 - Remembrance Day
 - Familiarization flying/gliding
 - A weekend exercise
 - At least one citizenship activity
 - Annual Cerominal Review

NOTE: this list does not constitute an exhaustive list of mandatory training and complementary training activities

The following are awards available to the cadets and will be presented at the Annual Cerominal Review parade:

Award	Description
Top First Year Cadet	This award is given to the most outstanding first year cadet in the squadron. The recipient must have performed well in class, and served as a role model for the other cadets in the Level. They must have good attendance, and have participated in numerous extra-curricular training activities. They must have achieved high uniform marks and have demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year.
Top Second Year Cadet	This award is given to the most outstanding second year cadet in the squadron. The recipient must have performed well in class, and served as a role model for the other cadets in the Level. They must have good attendance, and have participated in numerous extra-curricular training activities. They must have achieved high uniform marks and have demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year.
Top Third Year Cadet	This award is given to the most outstanding third year cadet in the squadron. The recipient must have performed well in class, and served as a role model for the other cadets in the Level. They must have good attendance, and have participated in numerous extra-curricular training activities. They must have achieved high uniform marks and have demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year.
Top Fourth Year Cadet	This award is given to the most outstanding fourth year cadet in the squadron. The recipient must have performed well in class, and served as a role model for the other cadets in the Level. They must have good attendance, and have participated in numerous extra-curricular training activities. They must have achieved high uniform marks and have demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year.
Top Range Cadet	This award is presented to the top performing range cadet. The recipient has shown dedication and have advance their skills in this chosen team or discipline
Top First Aid Member	This award is presented to the top performing first aid team cadet. The recipient has shown dedication and have advance their skills in this chosen team or discipline
Top Effective Speaking Cadet	This award is presented to the top performing effective speaking cadet. The recipient has shown dedication and have advance their skills in this chosen team or discipline
Top Band Cadet	This award is presented to the top performing band cadet. The recipient has shown dedication and have advance their skills in this chosen team or discipline

Top Junior NCO	This award is presented to the most efficient and outstanding Junior NCO. The recipient must be a good follower, and must be reliable when carrying out tasks assigned by superiors. They must work well as part of a team and they must have worked to develop their own leadership skills by getting to know their followers, motivating them and helping them to improve. They must have achieved high uniform marks and have demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year.
Top Senior NCO	This award is presented to the most efficient and outstanding Senior NCO. The recipient must be a good follower, and must be reliable when carrying out tasks assigned by superiors. They must work well as part of a team and they must have worked to develop their own leadership skills by getting to know their followers, motivating them and helping them to improve. They must have achieved high uniform marks and have demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year.
Fellowship Award	This award is chosen by the cadets, the fellowship is presented to the cadet who puts forward the forward the most effort, as judged by their peers. The recipient is seen as worthy of recognition for the amount of effort they put into the squadron.
The Training Officer's Instructional Technique Award	This award is presented to the squadron's top instructor. The recipient must have demonstrated a creative and appealing instructional style. They must have consistently delivered well-planned and well-organized lessons. They must have encouraged participation among their cadets and ensured that their classes were active and interesting, using a variety of training aides.
Most Improved Cadet	This award is presented to the cadet that has shown the highest amount of improvement in overall attitude, and deportment throughout the year. This cadet has shown willingness to learn and advance and takes corrective criticism positively and continues to work on weak areas. This individual has made the most progress since the beginning of the training year.
Air Commodore G. Truscott's Memorial Award	This award is presented to the squadron's overall top cadet. This cadet who has shown undeniable dedication to the squadron and has the highest participation in squadron activities. This individual has worked to develop their followers and taken initiative to improve the sqn as a whole. This cadet has participated in a variety of training activities, and has demonstrated outstanding effort throughout the year. They have achieved high uniform marks and demonstrated good personal deportment throughout the year. They are enthusiastic and dedicated, and serve as a role model to other cadets. They have also contributed to the development and mentorship of their peers, improving the Squadron as a whole.